For Immediate Release

For More Information, Please Contact:
Coleen Ellis, IAAHPC Executive Director
317.966.0096
Coleen@IAAHPC.org

Certified Hospice and Palliative Care Veterinarians and Technicians Shine in 2023 Graduation

[October 13, 2023, Southlake, TX] – The International Association for Animal Hospice and Palliative Care (IAAHPC) is thrilled to announce the graduation of its newest class of Certified Hospice and Palliative Care Veterinarians and Technicians. These dedicated professionals have successfully completed 100 hours of advanced learning in the field of animal hospice and palliative care, demonstrating their unwavering commitment to providing dignified end-of-life services for our beloved animal companions. Kari Trotsky, D.V.M, CHPV of Peaceful Endings for Pets was one of the 62 graduates in the 2023 class.

Dr. Sara Hopkins, President of IAAHPC, is incredibly proud of the 2023 graduates and their dedication to the profession. "The field of animal hospice and palliative care plays a vital role in ensuring that animals receive the compassionate care they deserve during their final stages of life. The commitment and hard work of our new graduates are a testament to their unwavering dedication to this noble cause."

These accomplished graduates join the ranks of 333 other professionals who have completed the IAAHPC's rigorous certification program. The IAAHPC continues to pave the way in the field, setting the standard for respectable and dignified end-of-life services for animals across the globe.

Dr. Diane Eigner, Certification Facilitator and Educator, applauds the graduates for their dedication to the profession. "These veterinarians and technicians have undergone extensive training to provide animals and their families with the highest level of care during one of life's most challenging moments. Their expertise and commitment are truly commendable."

The IAAHPC remains dedicated to advancing the field of animal hospice and palliative care, promoting the highest standards of excellence, and providing valuable resources and support to professionals in this field. This new class of Certified Hospice and Palliative Care Veterinarians and Technicians will undoubtedly contribute to the continued growth and success of the profession.

To learn more about the International Association for Animal Hospice and Palliative Care and its certification program, please visit www.IAAHPC.org.

About IAAHPC:

The International Association for Animal Hospice and Palliative Care (IAAHPC) is a global organization dedicated to promoting the highest standards of excellence in hospice and palliative care for animals. IAAHPC provides education, certification, and support to professionals and individuals who care for animals facing the end of life. The organization is committed to improving the quality of life for animals during this critical stage and ensuring that they receive compassionate, dignified, and respectful care.